At Synaptive, we relentlessly pursue connections to transform the process of care in and beyond the operating room. Ensuring the best possible outcomes for patients is what inspires and guides our advancements across medical devices, medical imaging and information science.

Privately funded and based in Toronto, Synaptive has built a deep cross-disciplinary team of engineers, scientists, locally-based customer care specialists and business experts. We’re collaborating with leading clinicians and healthcare systems to pursue integrated solutions that cross traditional barriers to enable continuous improvement in care delivery. Together, we’re revolutionizing products and services designed to give clinicians the information they need to provide the right treatment for the right patient at the right time.

Our innovative BrightMatter™ solutions offer state-of-the-art technologies, including advanced surgical planning, navigation and visualization, while our ImageDrive™ platform works to integrate the patient’s digital footprint across their circle of care. These products have been developed to be cost effective, clinically relevant, and above all, centered on improving patient care.
